

Reading Day Activities

Policy Statement

It is the policy of Lander University that no organized activities (academic or extracurricular) are allowed on the day between the end of classes and the beginning of exams, currently known as Reading Day. There may be no activities by any organizations or individuals, without exception, that in any way requires, encourages, or implies (social or otherwise) that students attend or that in any way impedes the ability of students to devote as much time as they wish studying for exams.
