

Travel to or Study in Areas under a U.S. State Department Travel Warning

Policy Statement

Lander University's standard policy is to not approve enrolled Lander students for travel to or study in a location where a U.S. Department of State Travel Warning is in effect. Students, faculty leaders, or Study Abroad Committee members can petition the Study Abroad Committee to waive the prohibition. Petitions are reviewed on a program-by-program basis. Details on submitting a petition can be obtained by contacting the Director of Study Abroad.

By way of application:

- Lander will not grant academic credit for or financial aid toward Study Abroad programs in areas under a U.S. State Department Travel Warning.
- A State Department Travel Warning may be for an entire country, or it may be for part of a country. If the latter, there would be no prohibition on areas not covered by the Warning.
