

Academic Program Assessment Report

Assessment is a term commonly used to encompass the process of gathering and using evidence to guide improvements.

SACSCOC requires that an institution "identifies expected outcomes, assesses the extent to which it achieves these outcomes, and provides evidence of seeking improvement based on analysis of the results".

Program Goal

Goal

Goal 1

Program Goals are broad and overarching statements about the skills, knowledge, and dispositions students are expected to gain by the end of their course of study (big picture). They support the Institution's Mission/Goals.

Program Goal

Students will demonstrate knowledge and understanding of concepts, processes, and institutions in the field of criminology.

Pillar of Success Supported

High-Demand, Market-Driven Programs

Outcomes

Outcome 1

Outcomes are specific, measurable statements that reflect the broader goals.

Academic Programs are required to develop Student Learning Outcomes, which describe knowledge, skills, and values that students are expected to gain as a result of their educational experiences.

Academic Programs may also develop Operational Outcomes, which describe the level of performance of an operational aspect of a program or office (ex. graduation rates, retention, employment data).

Most goals have at least two outcomes measured.

Comments/Narrative

In the academic year 22-23 the students results on the MFT (Criminal Justice) examination from the previous year decreased a little. To increase the scaffolding of information required on this examination several courses have been changed and others have been added to both the core required courses (Crim.298 - Introduction to Research Methods) and Crim.309 (Juvenile Delinquency and Crim.403Criminological Theory) are now Crim.399 (Criminological Theory). We have added Crim.235 (Human Trafficking), Crim.307 (Juveniles and the Law), Crim.328 (Victimology), Crim.345 (Criminal Justice and Mental Health), Crim.366 (Race and Ethnicity in Criminal Justice), Crim.373 (Criminal Evidence), and Crim.386 (Vulnerable Populations in Criminal Justice) these courses should help reinforce information and material for the students. To further increase the scaffolding information we have changed several of the outcome goals while adding information for all courses taught during the academic year being reported and decreased the items being used for assessment.

This academic year 21-22 there was an increase in student's results on the MFT (Criminal Justice) examination from the previous year. However, there are still students not meeting the 70% goal. We will be strengthening these results by incorporating information found in Corrections, Community Policing, Constitutional Law, and Introduction to Law courses in other courses students are required to take (core courses) and several elective courses. Incorporating some of this information in other courses will help address the issues related to transfer students and students who have not taken these courses.

This data was a summary of four semesters of itemized questions on the MFT (Criminal Justice). It took all four semesters to have enough data for an itemized analysis. There are several issues of concern this data highlighted. The Criminology curriculum gives students several options of courses to take at the 200 and 300 levels. These options are all very topic-specific, so a student could never have a course dealing with Corrections, Community Policing, Constitutional Law, and Introduction to Law. Yet, there are numerous questions on the MFT directly related to these courses. A second key issue is the breadth of the Criminology curriculum versus a Criminal Justice curriculum. The Criminology degree includes political science and sociology courses to address the wide scope of career paths. A third issue dealing with Spring 2019, 5 students had a minimum of 24 transfer hours applied to their Criminology degree.

Academic year 2020-2021 saw a decrease in all seven areas being examined on the Major Field Test (MFT) in Criminal Justice. Many of the questions from AY went unanswered due to the pandemic making major changes in teaching modalities. From AY 2019-2020: This poses several questions: is the use of adjunct faculty for 100 and 200-level criminology courses providing the information needed to scaffold knowledge for further courses? Are the students in the upper level courses being provided more in-depth knowledge to expand their knowledge?

AY 2020-2021 using the above concerns along with the following: What impact did the pandemic and changes in teaching modalities have on the Spring 2021 students? 65% of students taking the MFT in both Fall 2020 and Spring 2021 met the goal. However, there was a drop in Spring 2021 - these students experienced major changes in their final year.

Proposed adjustments to be made in AY 2020-2021: 1). The development of standardized course material (to include syllabus, course schedule, examinations, and assignments) in 100 and 200-level courses. 2). Incorporate theory in every course, beginning in the 100-level course. 3). Develop an examination to be given in the beginning of 300-level criminology courses to test memory of 100 and 200-level material. 3). Continue providing reading quizzes on material in courses. 4). Incorporate identification of research methodology and statistics from journal articles into courses beginning at the 200-level.

AY 2020-2021 one of the proposed changes has been accomplished: 3). Continue providing reading quizzes on material in courses.

Adjustments proposed for 2021-2022: Begin making the changes proposed in AY 2019-2020 with the hiring of another full-time faculty member. 1) Continue standardizing 100 and 200-level courses with textbooks, syllabi, assignments, and rubrics - for both on-line and face-to-face courses. 2). Incorporate quizzes focusing on material from 100 and 200-level courses in all 300-level courses. 4). Incorporate identification of research methodology and statistics from journal articles into courses beginning at the 200-level.

Resources Needed to Meet/Sustain Results

The "Item Information Report" on the MFT - Criminology from the ETS, which can be purchased for $350.00 per year is required to increase understanding of areas needing more reinforcement. It is very important to continue purchasing this report. This report assisted in identifying the areas in the curriculum which needed to be strengthened.

Explanation of How Resources Will Be Used

The results of the "Item Information Report" on the MFT - Criminology, will be used to strengthen and reinforce areas of content where students are falling below the national 70%.

The results of the "Item Information Report" on the MFT - Criminal Justice, will be broken down into the testing categories for the purpose of identification of information in which the students had difficulty with on the exam. By knowing the categories and information the students did not answer correctly on the exam will allow the information to be strengthened throughout the curriculum, instead of only in a few courses.

Outcome 2

Outcomes are specific, measurable statements that reflect the broader goals.

Academic Programs are required to develop Student Learning Outcomes, which describe knowledge, skills, and values that students are expected to gain as a result of their educational experiences.

Academic Programs may also develop Operational Outcomes, which describe the level of performance of an operational aspect of a program or office (ex. graduation rates, retention, employment data).

Most goals have at least two outcomes measured.

What type of Outcome would you like to add?

Student Learning Outcome

Enter Outcome

This outcome is based on Competency 1- University-level knowledge (the old Competency 1A). The outcome choices were changed to meet this Competency at the entry level of Criminology. We taught a total of nine Crim.101 courses. Five Crim.101 online courses and four face-to-face courses. The percentage of students will correctly answer 70% or higher on a series of multiple-choice vocabulary courses. This begins the level of scaffolding for the remaining Criminology courses.

The percentage of students will correctly answer 70% or higher on a series of multiple-choice quizzes given to students in Crim.309. These multiple-choice quizzes will question students on material from Criminology 100 and 200 level courses and material from Political Science 300-level courses required for the Criminology degree. chapter reading material.

Timeframe for this Outcome

AY 2022-2023

Performance Target for "Met"

Students who correctly answered all combined quiz total scores of 70% or higher.

Performance Target for "Partially Met"

Students who correctly answered all combined quiz total scores less than 70% but higher than 60%.

Performance Target for "Not Met"

Students who correctly answered all combined quiz total scores below 60%.

Comments/Narrative

AY 22-23 - This is the first year to use all (both face-to-face and online) Crim.101 courses to gauge the University level of knowledge (the old Competency 1A). As we continue to build scaffolding material and assessments in the criminology courses this is the most logical place to begin assessing Competency One (the old Competency 1A).

This is the last academic year Crim.309 will be used in the Criminology assessment - this course has been dropped from the curriculum. There are major changes being proposed for AY 2022-2023. The new course - Crim.399 will be a combination of Crim.309 and Crim.403. The new course will continue to use quizzes for the assessment.

AY 2021 - 2022 There was an issue with students not taking the Crim.309 online quizzes in the previous year. This was changed to have students take the quizzes in class. The students that did not take the quizzes were absent from class when the quiz was administered.

Crim.210 examinations continue to remain extremely high - changes are not needed.

The outcomes from this assessment data are at first glance disturbing. Upon further analysis having this assessment placed on-line was a poor choice. It was thought by allowing students to complete the on-line multiple-choice quizzes students would not feel rushed to complete the quizzes and they could take the quizzes at their convenience. By having weekly quizzes, it was thought, it would be easier to determine areas that required additional reinforcement. Many quizzes were not taken. Two students in the "Met" category took 15 quizzes, the other three students completed all the quizzes. No students were in the "Partially met" category. In the "Did not meet" category one student only completed fourteen quizzes with a 57.5% combined total score, one student completed eleven quizzes, one student completed nine quizzes and one student completed seven quizzes, It is unclear using this data if students have a solid knowledge base of understanding of concepts, processes and institutions in the criminology program.

AY2020-2021 - there was still an issue with students in Crim.309 not taking on-line quizzes and in Crim.210 on-line examinations. The number of on-line quizzes dropped in this reporting period due to having examinations and other assignments placed on-line due to the pandemic.

Proposed changes for AY 2021-2022: Encourage students to participate in on-line examinations and quizzes. Attempt to have more face-to-face examinations and quizzes (as absences due to the pandemic allow).

The percentage of students will correctly answer 70% or higher on quizzes given to students in on two quizzes given to students in Crim.235 face-to-face and Crim.250 online. It's important to consider this competency is carried out as students progress in courses and in both modalities.

This outcome was changed to address the change in teaching modalities in AY 2020-2021. The percentage of students will correctly answer 70% or higher on a quiz given to students in Crim.309 after mid-term. This multiple-choice quiz will question students on material from Criminology 100 and 200 level courses and material from Political Science 300-level courses required for the Criminology degree.

Moving to assess student's ability to retain information from Crim.101 and to build their knowledge and understanding of 200-level courses, Competencies 1 and 2 (the old Competencies 1A and 1B). This was the first semester Crim.235 was taught, the information and vocabulary provided in this course was totally new to the students. This course brought the outcome score down to partially met. More detailed information will be provided to the students to assist them in understanding the material. The material presented in Crim.250 OL contains material that was briefly presented and discussed in Crim.101.

AY 2021- 2022: Changing the quizzes in Crim.309 from online to in class quizzes raised the participation which raised the met category. This is the last assessment of Crim.309 due to major changes in the Criminology curriculum being proposed for AY 2022-2023. The new course Crim.399 will be a combination of Crim.309 and Crim.403. Quizzes will still be used for this assessment.

Crim.371 results dropped during this academic year. In the Partially Met category two students completed both assignments however, they did not follow directions for the assignments. In the Did not meet category six students had not completed one or more of the assignments.

There is still an issue with students not completing online assignments - adding notifications through the Calendar section in Blackboard may help address this issue.

AY 2020-2021: Combining the results from these two courses (Crim.309 and Crim.371) lowered the assessment from Met to Partially Met. Results for these two courses is disturbing, both courses had a lack of participation. Students will be reminded in class and through Blackboard announcements to increase participation in the quiz.

AY 2019-2020: The number of students not taking the on-line quizzes is still disturbing. However, the students taking the on-line quiz is still over 50% of students having acquired knowledge from 100 and 200-level courses. Continue to encourage students to take the on-line quiz.

Comments/Narrative

AY 22 - 23

Crim.390 OL is a policy course, which is the first course students have to learn and understand the impact of policy in the field of criminal justice. To address the Did Not Meet score policies in criminal justice will need to be discussed and presented in lower level courses to assist students in upper level courses. This is the first year for the Crim.399 course, a combination of the old Crim.309 and Crim.403. This course is a difficult course, the material is dense and this may be the first course students have encountered with such details. Changes in preparing students in both courses for quizzes and examination may require reviews of both the theories and examples of application of policies using these theories presented may increase student's understanding and ability to apply the theories to policies.

AY 21-22 Crim.309 had increase participation in students taking the quizzes in class. Taking the quizzes in class before a lecture increased understanding of material in the lecture which increased class discussion.

This is the last reporting for Crim.309 due to proposed curriculum changes for 2022-2023. The new course Crim.399 will be a combination of Crim.309 and Crim.403. Quizzes will still be used for this assessment.

Crim.210 also had increased participation with students taking online quizzes. Continue to use verbal reinforcement prior to quiz date to encourage students to take the quiz..

AY 20-21 On-line quizzes were used during this reporting period with two changes: 1). the quizzes were part of the textbook online package and 2). a verbal reinforcement was provided prior to encourage students to take the quiz. Each quiz was taken at the start of a new chapter. By having the student take the quiz after reading the chapter and before faculty lectured on the chapter, the students were able to understand the material.

AY 2021-2022: Continue proposed above for following year.

AY 2021-2022: There is a benefit for students to read the chapter material prior to having a lecture and discussion on the required material. These chapter quizzes will continue to be used.

AY 2021-2022: There is a benefit for students to read the chapter material prior to having a lecture and discussion on the required material. These chapter quizzes will continue to be used. However, many students in both of these courses failed to take all of the on-line quizzes. Students will be encouraged in face-to-face classes to take the quizzes and reminders will be placed in on-line courses to take the quizzes.

Resources Needed to Meet/Sustain Results

Explanation of How Resources Will Be Used

Goal Summary

Goal Summary/Comments

It was important to include both semesters of MFT results to determine issues that were identified for the first time in Fall 2018. This was the first time there was enough data to use the "Item Information Report". Using the "Item Information Report" several categories on the MFT were identified as troublesome. The questions in the categories of Community Policing, Corrections, and Constitution Law were below the national 70%. Continued use of the MFT "item information report" will continue to be used to strengthen the Criminology discipline. Strengthening the discipline means not only looking at individual courses currently being taught but, also adding relevant courses into the curriculum as the discipline continues to change.

Changes Made/Proposed Related to Goal

AY 22-23: Changing the outcomes for this goal is to assess the scaffolding of information from the 100-level courses through the 300-level courses to ensure a solid foundation to prepare the student for a career after graduation. By using two competencies and similar assessment data we can identify where information provided to students need strengthened. The Criminology discipline has a large number of transfer students from SC Technical colleges across the state. These students struggle with the in-depth level of information and the expectations in the courses in the curriculum. They appear to be more focused on memorization instead of developing critical thinking skills required in this degree. This creates difficulty in analysis of the material and the required writing skills needing to succeed.

AY 21-22: The MFT results will continue to be used to address areas where students struggle. These areas will continue to be reinforced in ALL courses, introduced in the 100 and 200-level courses and reinforced in the 300-level courses and add discussion of some issues in Crim.499 through readings and discussions.

Crim.309 (along with Crim.403) is being deleted from the curriculum for AY 22-23 to combined into a new course Crim.399 (this course will include all the theory from Crim.309 and Crim.403). A new course Crim.307 (Law and Juvenile Justice) will address specific issues related to the law and juveniles, which was a part of Crim.309. A new course Crim.307 (Law and Juvenile Justice) will address specific issues related to the law and juveniles. The Criminology degree is now in two modes - Criminology OL and the traditional in class degree. Crim.399 will be taught every semester - one semester online and one semester face-to-face. This will address the new Criminology OL degree.

Criminology still has a need for adjunct faculty to teach in all course levels of the degree. We will begin to ask adjuncts to add specific information (related from areas identified in the MFT) into their course. The material will depend on what course and what level course they are teaching. We will begin to add standardized items in all courses for assessment.

AY 20-21: To address the issues with the MFT it is proposed information from 100, 200, and 300 level courses will be reinforced in 300 level courses.

To address the issues identified with the multiple-choice quizzes proposed in Crim.309, the number of quizzes will drop to 3 from 16. The total number of multiple-choice questions will drop from 80 to 75 and the quizzes will be given during class. The quizzes will still contain information from 100 and 200 level courses taught by adjunct faculty along with the Pols.300-level courses also taught by adjunct faculty.

AY 2018-2019 there were 8 online quizzes for students to complete. Due to the amount of information students needed to be exposed to the quizzes remained online instead of being given during class time. The textbook packet contained the quizzes. The results were all above 70% with the lowest three quiz totals being 85%. This high percentage looks good but, there is a concern of taking the quizzes with an open book.

AY 2019-2020 an exam will be given after mid-term. The quiz will be timed and online and will count as bonus points. Students tend to forget to take quizzes online, so by giving the quiz after mid-term it can be used as an incentive to take and increase their grade in the course.

AY 2020-2021 students are still failing to take the on-line quiz. Continue encouraging students to take the quiz. The addition of one full-time faculty member will address material found in Corrections. Community Policing and Constitutional Law are still being taught by adjunct faculty. Full-time faculty members will need to add information from these courses into the core classes they teach.

Comments/Narrative

AY 22-23: From these results students are able to apply information from a 200 and 300-level course appropriately. It's important to complete the assessment on both online and face-to-face courses since the degree can be earned in both modalities. Reminding students when submissions are due is critical to increase student's success. Reminders can be placed in Announcements in Blackboard as well as verbal reminders in face-to-face courses.

AY 2021-2022: This is the last assessment for Crim.403 - this course is discontinued after this AY - the new course Crim.399 will replace BOTH Crim.309 and Crim.403. The new course Crim.399 will be a combination of Crim.309 and Crim.403. Peer-reviewed journal article summaries will be continued in the new course to assess critical thinking skills.

AY 2020-2021 There was measurable increase in the change proposed from last report (AY 2019-2020). Having students read and analyze peer-reviewed journal articles, discuss them in class, and have essay questions on examinations has been successful. Students exhibited critical thinking skills using this method. Continue in the future.

It will continue to be important to remind students to complete assignments through face-to-face interaction (when possible) and/or notices in Blackboard.

In AY 2019-2020 - a new data collection tool was to be used - group debates (pro and con sides) related to a subcategory of criminology. However, due to the pandemic and the campus closing another form of evaluation had to be developed. The students had been analyzing peer-reviewed journal articles of several subcategories of criminology. The questions they presented from the peer-reviewed journal articles became the two essay examinations for the course.

In the previous assessment year (AY 2018-2019) all students met the performance target.

Two theory courses are in place to scaffold criminology theory. The ability for students taking two courses addressing criminology theory (Crim.309 - Juvenile Delinquency and Crim.403 - Criminology theory) appears to benefit student's critical thinking skills. Crim.309 - Juvenile Delinquency introduces criminology theory while Crim.403 expands these theories into current applications.

This is the first assignment in Crim.390 focusing on scaffolding information and critical thinking skills toward the end product (persuasive essay). Crim.350 was taught by an adjunct in Fall 2021 - peer-reviewed journal articles were not assigned so the mid-term examination is being used for this assessment.

AY 2021-2022 a persuasive essay was not done during this period due to changes in course due to issues with the pandemic. The first and second peer-reviewed journal articles are still used in this assessment. Crim.350 Ethics in Criminal Justice first and last writing assignments are used to focus on scaffolding of critical thinking skills.

Comments/Narrative

AY 2022-2023

The assessment for these outcome results were encouraging. Students appear to appropriately apply information from the four courses reviewed. Once again, comparing OL and face-to-face courses are important to keep both modalities relevant and strong. There is still an issue in both modalities of students not submitting assignments. Announcements in Blackboard for both modalities and a verbal reminder in face-to-face courses may help lower the No Submission rate in the future.

AY 2021 - 2022

The assessment of Crim.350 was a mid-term assessment due to adjunct faculty not having a blog or having an essay assigned.

In AY 2020-2021 Crim.350 (Ethics in Criminal Justice) was added to the assessment. The second blog writing assignment increased the percentage of Not Met due to students failing to complete the assignment. Crim.390 (Current Policies in Criminal Justice) also had an increase in Not Met due to students failing to complete the last peer-reviewed journal article assignment.

Proposed increased reminders in Blackboard and face-to-face classes (when possible) for upcoming assignments. The persuasive essay will be added to Crim.390 in AY 2021-2022 if face-to-face classes resume.

In AY 2019-2020 the project outline was broken down into 3 separate sections for submission and grading. The final piece was a final persuasive essay. These peer-reviewed journal articles are the first step in scaffolding information and critical thinking skills to develop the final product - a persuasive essay.

In AY 2017 - 2018 it was proposed that a written assignment from Crim.350 (Ethics in Criminology) was to be used to assess critical thinking skills. Due to faculty staffing shortages, it was not appropriate to use Crim.350 in the assessment. To provide a second assessment tool for critical thinking skills, Crim.390 (Current Policy in Criminology) was used for assessment. This assignment is the outline for students to expand into a fully developed essay.

AY 2022 - 2023 The focus continues on Competency 3: the ability to apply information (the old Competency 2). Students are doing well with applying the information from the course to explain current news articles. There is still an issue with students not submitting assignments. Announcements can be placed in Blackboard for both modalities and also verbally remind students in class when assignments are due to decrease the percentage of No Submissions.

In AY 2021-2022 The submission rates for the two written assignments went up this AY, However, there is still an issue with students not completing assignments. Verbal encouragement will continue to be used in face-to-face classes and weekly announcements of upcoming assignments will be given in online courses.

In AY 2020-2021 the Not met category contained all but two students that did not submit both assignments. A third of the students that submitted both assignments Met the goal while a second third of the assignments Partially Met the assessment goals.

Proposed change - this was a challenging year to teach criminal justice definitions, concepts, and theories due to changes in the presentation of materials. Many students were in and out of class due to the pandemic and virtual classes. This year's assessment cannot be used to compare with previous years due to the unusual conditions,

Resources Needed to Meet/Sustain Results

Explanation of How Resources Will Be Used

Goal Summary

Goal Summary/Comments

Both of these critical thinking skills assessment tools were designed to scaffold material, concepts, and additional information for students to translate into an application.

Changes Made/Proposed Related to Goal

AY 2022 - 2023 This goal and outcome is the beginning of the scaffolding of effective and appropriate communication skills found in later competencies. There are still too many students who are not submitting assignments. This is a serious issue since the Criminology degree is built on scaffolding information and skills beginning with the 100-level course and continuing throughout the entire curriculum. Missing information from lower level courses can have a negative impact on upper level courses and the MFT examination at the 400-level.

AY 2021-2022 There are still numerous students who do not submit assignments. This issue is especially noted in the 100-level courses writing assignments. Missing assignments has a negative impact on the student's grade but also has a negative impact on student's building their knowledge foundation for future courses. In the 300-level courses annotated peer-reviewed journal articles were summarized and abstracts were added to the final essay grade.

AY 2020-2021: Scaffolding of material and concepts in lower-level courses (100, 200, and 300-level) through writing assignments. In 100-level course a summary of a news article connecting to a criminological concept. In the 200-level courses the writing assignment will be an observation connecting with a criminological concept. In the 300-level course annotated summaries, introductions, and abstracts will be added to writing assignments.

AY 2020-2021 300-level courses did not add annotated summaries, introductions or abstracts to writing assignments. Students had a difficult time understanding these skills in a face-to-face course. These skills were not added to writing assignments during the complicated teaching parameters of this year.

Comments/Narrative

In 2022-2023 Focus was on Competency 5: The ability to communicate effectively (the old Competency 4A). Students in both Crim.499 (the last course prior to graduation), Crim.386 and Crim.399 were able to communicate effectively in written form at the end of the course. This is encouraging that students are able to incorporating material from the course and write effectively about the information.

In 2021-2022 Crim.499 students were able to research the academic and professional development issues needed to prepare for entry into their chosen profession and the academic and additional job skills they will need for promotions in their career. They then applied that information into a game format providing instructions to the other groups to participate in the game. Crim.409 students completed power point slides on their independent research project.

In AY 2020-2021 the pandemic made power point presentation not possible. Power point presentations will be resumed when the pandemic permits.

AY 2019-2020 All but one student completed the power point presentation in front of their cohorts. The one student was not able to present due to a family emergency.

In AY 2017 - 2018 the assessment tool used was a powerpoint presentation from Crim.309 (Juvenile Delinquency). Additional assignments are being used in this assessment report. Due to the number of assignments being used from Crim.309 in this report, using Crim.490 (Criminology Internship) will expand the number of courses being used to assess the Criminology discipline. The same assessment tool used in Crim.309 is the same assessment tool being used in Crim.490.

Comments/Narrative

AY 2022-2023

This Competency was Met in all four courses. Once again it's important to continue to compare and assess online courses with face-to-face courses. Having a discipline degree offered in two modalities means eventually all the courses offered will be offered in both modalities. As we continue to work toward that goal there is a need to continue making adjustments in the assessment data reporting to ensure the courses in both modalities are meeting the same outcome goals.

AY 2021-2022

Crim.350 was an online course and there were numerous students who did not submit the second discussion post. Posting an announcement of the week's upcoming assignments may be helpful to increase student submissions.

Crim.309 Students completed an essay outline which was graded several weeks prior to submission of the final essay. The graded essay outline appears to assist the students in determining lacking information for their final essay. The use of a graded outline for the final essay will be continued. This will be the last assessment using Crim.309 - the essay assignment will be moved to Crim.399 course for the next semester.

Students had difficulty completing three essay assignments with a 70% or better - the same percentages of students met and partially met the assessment goal. Project outlines for essay assignments scores in Crim.390 all met 70% so the bridge between the essay outline and the final product (essay) needs to be strengthened. An additional persuasive essay will be placed in Crim.309.

Using the data from AY 2018-2019 half of the students met and half of the students partially met this goal. The criminology department is focusing on scaffolding writing skills, as well as critical thinking skills and the above assessment measure only partially met this goal. The concern for having the students compose three essays without adequate scaffolding preparation will be adjusted in AY 2019-2020.

In AY 2019-2020 this assignment was broken into separate steps. The first step is to critically analyze a peer-reviewed journal article - step two to critically analyze three pro and three con articles - the final step is to prepare a persuasive essay. One student did not submit the persuasive essay assignment.

In AY 2020-2021 By adding Crim.390 to Crim.350 student assessment scores dropped from Met to Partially Met. The first discussion post for both courses had numerous student's failure to post on the discussion board. Students' participation in assignments at the beginning of the semester pose several questions: 1) Did the students fail to remember the assignment due date? or 2) Did the complicated semester, due to the pandemic, overwhelm the students which created a lack of participation?

Outcomes are specific, measurable statements that reflect the broader goals.

Academic Programs are required to develop Student Learning Outcomes, which describe knowledge, skills, and values that students are expected to gain as a result of their educational experiences.

Academic Programs may also develop Operational Outcomes, which describe the level of performance of an operational aspect of a program or office (ex. graduation rates, retention, employment data).

Comments/Narrative

In AY 2022-2023 - Competency 6: The ability to communicate appropriately (the old Competency 4B) was Met in these courses. The online modalities had better overall rates than the face-to-face course. Two different modes of presentation were assessed: in the classroom presentation and a video presentation. It was interesting to note the video presentation for one class had 11% no submission, while the other online video presentation had 100% submission rate. I'm unclear how to address this discrepancy, we will discuss this in our upcoming meetings.

In AY 2021-2022 - The courses for assessment were changed from previous years due to the increase in course options for students. The skills for these courses are the same as previous courses. Crim.371 is an elective course requiring clear writing skills of criminogenic concepts, as is Crim.390. Crim.271 (Research Methods) is proposed as a core course in AY 2022-2023. It was used during this assessment year to establish a base-line.

In AY 2020-2021 - The quality of the student's last discussion post increased in postings for Crim.390 but decreased in Crim.350. It is unclear what caused the altering of not submitted discussion posts. Reminders on Blackboard for on-line courses and verbal reminders in face-to-face classes should help to increase participation in assignments.

In AY 2019-2020 article summaries were added into the curriculum to provide students a scaffolding assignment for a final assignment. By giving students the opportunity to provide three pro and three con summaries toward a final persuasive essay assignment. Breaking the final assignment into several pieces (which this assignment was) assisted students in critical thinking skills yet the assignment was not so overwhelming students became lost.

Resources Needed to Meet/Sustain Results

Explanation of How Resources Will Be Used

Goal Summary

Goal Summary/Comments

AY 2022-2023 - Writing skills are critical all criminology courses and careers. Writing skills continue to be assessed while scaffolding from the 100-level course through the 400-level courses. Writing skills will continue to be reinforced through all criminology courses.

AY 2021-2022 - Writing skills are critical in all criminology courses and careers. Writing skills continue to be assessed while scaffolding from the 100-level course through the 400-level courses. Writing skills will continue to be reinforced through all criminology courses.

Students do well with oral communication skills, this appears to be the result of presenting material in the 200 and 300- level courses within the discipline. This scaffolding appears to be a necessary component for oral communication. Writing skills for persuasive essays need to be reinforced. Students do well in developing an outline however, expanding the outline to a complete essay needs to be practiced and reinforced in additional courses.

In AY 2020-2021 - Assignments had to be altered due to the pandemic. Considering all the changes both faculty and students were dealing with during the Spring semester, students worked hard to learn the material being presented. Student participation in on-line assignments varied from course to course and semester to semester. Faculty will encourage students to participate in on-line assignments and provide reminders in Blackboard.

Changes Made/Proposed Related to Goal

In AY 2022-2023 - Writing assignments should be assessed through in all course levels. All the writing assignments use scaffolding of critical thinking skills to complete the assignments.

In AY 2021-2022 - Writing assignments should be assessed through in all course levels. All the writing assignments use scaffolding of critical thinking skills to complete the assignments.

In AY 2020-2021 essay writing in Crim.403 is being moved to Goal 4

In AY 2019-2020 short essays will be included in Crim.403 (Criminology) in chapter exams. This will give students additional opportunities to use concepts and information to answer questions in a short essay format. Although students met the writing goal for an essay outline the essay part on an examination will assist students in completing concepts and thoughts to answer the larger question or support their response. The goal is for continued practice using an essay format will help reinforce what information to present in a longer essay format.

In AY 2022-2023 Crim.499 (in both modalities) will use the resume and cover letter packet to meet Competency 5: The ability to communicate effectively (the old Competency 4A) and Competency 6: The ability to communicate appropriately (the old Competency 4B).

In AY 2021-2022 Crim.499 was taught face-to-face so the discussion posts have been replaced with a resume and cover letter packet.

In AY 2020-2021 Crim.490(Criminology Internship) this course is not being used in this assessment - The pandemic cancelled internships for this reporting period. Crim.499 (Criminology Capstone) has been redesigned to focus on professional development and careers, no longer is a research paper required. Crim.499 (Criminology Capstone) will be assessed through discussion posts. Independent research courses had been added to the major, students now have the option of registering for Independent Research each semester. Crim.403 take home examinations will be used to assess this goal.

Percentage of students demonstrating the ability to apply criminological concepts and theories in a research paper in Crim.490 (Criminology Internship).

Comments/Narrative

In AY 2022-2023 - This assignment has "real world" value for the students. Since this course is taken by students in their senior year they are focused on getting a job. This assignment uses the application of academic knowledge of the discipline into the application of searching for entry level careers and the development of a cover letter for a specific job opening and the cover letter stressing the skills they possess to meet the job qualifications. The one student who did Not Submit the assignment in Spring 2023 was hired by a SC Law Enforcement agency - he submitted the application packet to the agency but did not submit it for grading purposes.

In AY 2021-2022 - Crim.499 Since moving the course to focus on career development and the application of academic knowledge of the discipline into the application of searching for entry level careers and the development of a cover letter for a specific job opening and the cover letter stressing the skills they possess to meet the job qualifications.

In AY 2020-2021 - Crim.390 was not used in this goal assessment due to the number of changes that were made due to required changes because of the pandemic. Three students failed to post on the discussion board in Fall 2020 - all students completed the discussion post in Spring 2021. Students were reminded to submit to the discussion board prior to the due date.

AY 2019 - 2020 there were two students that did not meet this goal. These two students struggled completing assignment and submitting assignments. The goal is to increase the "Met" score to 100%. Continue breaking down parts of the final paper (annotated article summaries, introduction, conclusion) into an additional course - Crim.390 (Current Policies in Criminology).

Continued verbal encouragement and reminders how to complete and submit required assignments in face-to-face classes and announcements posted in Blackboard for online classes.

In AY 2020-2021 Crim.210 discussion posts were used to assess criminological concepts and theories in lower level courses.

All students who met the 70% marker responded to all three discussion modules and responded to at least two cohorts in all three modules. There were two students who partially met the marker, these students answered only two discussion modules and responded to at least two cohorts for the two discussion modules. There were three students who did not meet the 70% marker were lacking in their responses to cohorts and/or failed to respond to all three modules.

Comments/Narrative

In AY 2022-2023 There was a drop in the assessment scores for the Crim.399 OL essay exams. It's unclear why the final essay questions were Met but the short essay exam questions only Partially Met. Crim.399 OL had a serious drop from previous take home essay exams. These results will be discussed in future meetings to try and determine how to strengthen the student's knowledge for future essay exams.

In AY 2021-2022 Crim.403 scores increased on the take home exams. More time was spent discussing specific criminological theories, going more in-depth, and providing more options of the questions to answer on the exams. This is the last assessment for Crim.403 - this course is being discontinued. The new course Crim.399 is being proposed to begin 2022-2023.

In AY 2020-2021 Crim.403 take home exams which focused on essay questions. More time should be spend to break down information to increase student's understanding of the material.

Goal Summary/Comments

In 2022-2023 Students exhibited their ability to analyze information and provide appropriate and accurate information in essay form on several examinations. There was a drop in accurate information in response to essay questions in the Crim.399 online course. A review of the PowerPoint slides, videos, and extra readings will be reviewed to ensure the Crim.399 OL course is receiving information possibility given through examples and situations given in the face-to-face course.

In 2021-2022 Students that are submitting assignments are understanding and apply concepts and theories of criminology. Unfortunately, there are students that are not following instructions or not submitting assignments. The Criminology degree is now in two modules all of the core classes and numerous electives will be offered both online and face-to-face. It is becoming important to determine the most effective way to encourage students to submit assignments.

In AY 2020-2021 many goals had to be adjusted to accommodate data from additional full-time faculty and dealing with restraints due to the pandemic.

For the first goal was 88% "met" during the AY 2017-2018 summary, this has increased to 91.6% during this assessment. The second goal had 93% "met" during AY 2017-2018 summary, this decreased to 50% during this assessment.

Changes Made/Proposed Related to Goal

In AY 2022-2023 Changes in the courses being assessed due to changes in the curriculum, the additional of an online degree and the ability of the students to take both online and face-to-face courses while living on campus.

In AY 2021-2022 Changes in the courses being assessed due to faculty changes and the addition of the degree in two modules. The data seems to indicate missing assignment submission critically needs improvement. Posting announcements in Blackboard and reminding students in class on upcoming assignments appears successful in several courses. This should be increased in all courses.

In AY 2020-2021 Crim.490 (Criminology Interns) had to be restructured due to the pandemic and few internships in the community. Crim.499 (Criminology Capstone) has been restructured due to Independent Research being a separate course students may register to take. Crim.499 now focuses on professional development and careers.

In AY 2019-2020 the course being used for the assessment summary will be Crim.499 (Criminology Capstone) instead of Crim.490 (Criminology Internship). In AY 2019-2020 Crim.490 (Criminology Internship) is now a Pass/Fail course without a final research paper. In AY 2019-2020 Crim.499 (Criminology Capstone) will have an independent research paper and this paper will be used for the assessment of applying criminological concepts and theories. Students will be encouraged in Crim.499 (Criminology Capstone) class to complete the discussion modules.

Outcome 1

Outcomes are specific, measurable statements that reflect the broader goals.

Academic Programs are required to develop Student Learning Outcomes, which describe knowledge, skills, and values that students are expected to gain as a result of their educational experiences.

Academic Programs may also develop Operational Outcomes, which describe the level of performance of an operational aspect of a program or office (ex. graduation rates, retention, employment data).

Most goals have at least two outcomes measured.
